Her Brother's Debt.

'Oh, Charley, Charley, how could you do such a thing ?'

Lilias Wayland's round cheek was blanched to an unwonted whiteness as she stood before her brother in the close, cramped room which constituted her sole home.

Charley Wayland, a handsome dissipated-looking youth of two or three and twenty, with bold, black eyes and a merry mouth that seemed was only made to smile, sat opposite her, looking half repentant, half defiant, as she spoke.

'Lilly, I couldn't help it. I tell you I was hard up. A fellow must have money ; you women don't know anything about temptations and necessities of the world !'

'But, Charley,' she faltered, 'do you know how this same world as you phrase it, looks at the deed you have just committed ? Oh, Charley, and her voice grew low and tremulous, 'it is a forgery !'

'Nonsense, Lill ! It's only borrowing a part of old Glencross' unused millions to aid my needs. I wrote and asked him for cash, and he, the unmannerly lout, refused. Well, what could he expect after this, but that I should help myself ?'

Lilias wrung her slender hands.

'How dare you, Charley ! That a Wayland should come to this !' she wailed.

'Dared !' he echoed, recklessly ; 'it was but the stroke of the pen, after all; and old Glencross would be a paltrier miser than I take him to be if he makes a fuss about a matter of five hundred dollars.'

'It is the right and the justice of the thing,' cried Lilias, almost frantically. 'If we could pay him in any way ; but I have sold everything that remains of our former wealth. See !' and she looked around the miserable appartment. 'See how I live ! Last night I sat up until midnight sewing to have a little money to pay the rent. I have not a jewel left nor a trinket.'

'Oh, bother, Lill ! If old Glencross cuts up rough, it is only taking a run across the water. I know lots of ship-captains that would stow me away under their holds, almost any moonlight night,'

Lilias looked despairingly at him. Was it, then, impossible to make him comprehend the moral obliquity of the deed he had just committed ?

'But I can't stay fooling here,' observed the young man, with a toss of his black curls. 'I must be off about my business. Good-by, Lill. Give us a kiss, my girl. Except that you're uncommon fond of lecturing a fellow, you're not a bad sister in the main.'

After he had gone Lilias sat down to try and realize the new situation in which she and her brother were placed. All now depended upon the spirit in which Paulus Glencross should receive this new encroachment upon his purse and patience.

Lily had never seen this distant relation, yet she had formed an opinion of him in her inmost mind, as we are all apt to do of unseen persons whom we hear a great deal about ; and whenever she thought of Mr. Glencross the image of a hook-nosed old man, yellow-skinned and cadaverous, engaged in sorting over piles of mortgages or counting bags of gold, suggested itself to her mental eye.

'But he must be human, at least,' thought Lily, in the agony of her distress. 'If I go to him myself, and tell him just what poor Charley's necessities were, and how good hearted he is in spite of all his faults and thoughtlessness—if I say frankly to him that I have no money nor jewels to reimburse him, but that I will stay and work for him, as a servant girl might work in the kitchen, until I have discharged the horrible debt, surely oh, surely he cannot have the heart to refuse. I can do a great many things. I can sew and embroider, and I can make good bread and biscuit, and poor mamma always said I was a good housekeeper, and if Mr. Glencross is really so miserly as Charley thinks he would look at the economy of the thing. At least, it is worth trying.

So favorably did Lilias Wayland regard this idea, broached in her sore extremity, that in two days from the evening in which she had bidden good by to her handsome, reckless brother, she stepped from the cars at the New York depot, dressed in a sober brown suit that made her look like a shrinking little mouse, with her carpet bag in her hand.

A little inquiry sufficed to bring her to the street where Mr. Glencross resided—a stately avenue, lined on either side with elegant palaces, the like of which Lily had never seen in the plainer city where she had been born and bred. Her heart sank within her as she stood on the broad brown-stone steps leading up to the carved rosewood door, on which a silver plate bore the name of 'Glencross' in old English letters.

Then, coloring deeply at her own cowardly tremulousness and utter lack of all resolution and enterprise, she rang the bell to settle the question at once and definitely.

'Is Mr. Glencross at home ?' she asked of the colored servant who answered the summons.

Yes, Mr. Glencross was at home ; would the young lady enter ? And Lilias was shown into an apartment curtained with havy folds of purple satin and carpeted with velvet of the same rich color, an apartment whose dusky splendor made her think of all the stories she had read of enchanted palaces in the realms of fairy land.

As Lilias sat on the silken sofa, waiting with a throbbing heart for the appearance of her unknown cousin, the thought stole into her mind that he wasn't so much of a 'miser' after all ; and then came a sick sort of misgiving that her mission was all in vain.

'For surely,' she thought, glancing tremulously round the elegant apartment, 'he will not want any one to make bread or look after the kitchen expenditures. I wish—oh, I wish that I was safe at home again !'

The thought had scarcely framed itself in her mind when a door at the farther end of the room was opened, and a tall, handsome man, scarely thirty years of age, entered.

'I—I beg your pardon, sir,' faltered Lilias, all in a flutter, 'but I wished to see Mr. Glencross.'

'I am Mr. Glencross.'

'You !' Lily rose up and sat down again, coloring vivid scarlet. This, then, was their 'far-off' cousin, and how widely different from their dreams and fancies ! Apparently the gentleman saw and pitied her painful confusion, for he said politely :

'May I ask in what manner I can be useful to you ?'

'I am Lilias Wayland !' she answered, in a tone that was scarcely audible.

'Wayland !' A shadow, faint yet distinctly perceptible, overspread his face at that word, and Lilias saw it with a failing heart. She forgot the labored speech of palliation and excuse that she had prepared. She forgot that he was no silver-haired patriarch, but a handsome young man, surrounded by all the adjuncts of wealth and luxury. She remembered only poor Charley and her own sickening idea of debt, disgrace and ruin ; and sinking on her knees at his feet, she sobbed out her pitiful story.

'He is so young,' she wailed, 'so young, surely you will not refuse to give him another chance for name and fame ! I will work and toil for you until the five hundred dollars are every cent paid. I will be a servant, a seamstress—what you please, only, promise me that you will not visit him with the penalties of the law ?'

Her voice died into quivering silence, but her eyes still appealed.

'Rise, Miss Wayland,' said the young man, without a moment's consideration. 'I promise that this offence of your brother's shall be overlooked for the sake of the sister who has pleaded so eloquently for him.'

'And I—what can I do for you ? What must I do ? For if I cannot repay the money in some shape or other I shall die of shame and mortification !'

'I will take the matter into consideration,' said Mr. Glencross, gravely, yet not with out a certain gleam of amusement in the corners of his mouth at the idea of that pretty, slender creature rendering up to him the equivalent of the five hundred dollars. 'And now, Cousin Lilias—for I believe we may claim relationship, although it is somewhat distant—I shall insist upon you as my guest for a while. Let me ring and send for my mother !'

Mrs. Glencross, a stately old lady in black silk and Valencinnes lace, welcomed Lilias Wayland with a smiling hospitality which belonged to the ancient regime and almost before she knew it the girl found herself chatting innocently away to her hostess, as if she had lived all her live in the sunshine of that pleasant smile ; while Paulus Glencross, busied among some papers at the table beyond, watched the sweet changing countenance with a new interest.

'I never saw such a lovely face in my life,' he thought. 'The profile is as purely Grecian as the face of the Hero on my mother's cameo, and the eyes are as full of shifting lights as a diamond ! Upon my word, this little new cousin is an acquisition !'

When Lilias wrote her happy letter home that night Mr. Glencross added a pleasant postscript and Charley Wayland knew that his season of peril was over.

Lily had been nearly a month the guest of the stately old lady in black silk and Valencinnes lace, when one day Paulus, coming suddenly into the purple twilight of the drawing-rooms, found her sitting all alone with tear-drops glittering on her peachy cheek.

'Why Lily, what is the matter ?'

'Nothing, Paulus'—they had grown to be good friends by this time—'only I have been dreaming very pleasantly, and the time of waking has come at last.'

'You mysterious little sphinx, what on earth do you mean ?'

She colored and cast down her eyes.

'The five hundred dollars, Paulus—they are not yet paid. No—don't interrupt me. I cannot consent to indulge your generous impulses. I must pay you, and there is no other way for me than to seek a situation as governess or instructress in some seminary. So Paulus, I have written an advertisement, and if you will be so kind as to take it down to the office of some one of the daily papers——'

'Give it to me !' he interrupted.

She placed it confidently in his hand; he tore it deliberately in strips.

'Paulus,' she cried in amazement.

'Lily this is nonsense. If you want to pay me you can.'

'But, Paulus, you know I have nothing in all the world !'

'You have yourself—to me the most presious gift the aforesaid world contains.'

'I don't understand you.'

'Must I speak plainer ? Well, then, Lily, give me yourself. I love you, darling, and would fain make you my wife. Are you content to pay me in this coin ?'

'Oh, Paulus !' she faltered. 'I never dreamed of so much happiness.'

And so Lilias Wayland's indebtedness was settled most satisfactorily.

A TERRIBLE STORM ON THE COAST OF TEXAS.

A Large Number of Persons at Sabine Pass Drowned.

GALVESTON, Tex., Oct. 14.—The town of Sabine Pass, at the mouth of the Sabine river, the dividing line between Louisiana and Texas, is reported to be entirely washed away by the terrific storm of Tuesday night. Over 50 lives are reported lost out of a total population of 200. All telegraphic communication with the town is cut off. Sabine Pass is 60 miles up the coast from Galveston and 28 miles southwest of Beaumont, the county seat of Jefferson county. It is thought that the bar in front of the town will prevent any tugs from landing, and the owners of tugs here regard it as useless to attempt to enter the treacherous channel since the storm.

Damage to Eads' Jetties.

Terrific Force of the Recent Gale in the Gulf of Mexico.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 14 —A special from Port Eads to the Times-Democrat says: The extent of the damage occasioned by the late storm is not known, but it has been widespread from the jetties to Pointe a la Hache. The wind, from fresh Saturday night was blowing hard all day Sunday, and on Monday increased to a hurricane. There were 2½ feet of water in Port Eads, and the sea was running heavy over the east side of the jetties. Here is situated a great concrete wall extending from the inner reef to the end of the works which are intended to prevent the waves of the Gulf from washing sand into the channel. It is nearly parallel to and distant about 200 yards from the jetties proper. Immense blocks of concrete had been moulded in boxes, and measured, in solid contents, 8 by 15 feet, and weighed many tons apiece. A house had also been built where cement was stored for concrete blocks. Some idea of the terrific force of the gale and pounding sea can be arrived at when it is known that many of these heavy blocks were lifted out of position and swallowed up in the sea. Others were stood upon end and others twisted out of place, causing considerable damage. The bulkhead that is being built between this wall and the jetties proper was entirely submerged, and the waters rolled over it from end to end. The building was swept away, not a vestige of it having been left to mark the spot where it stood. The plank road that served Port Eads as a public street floated off and became debris among the white caps. The water continued to rise Monday, and reached the first floor of several houses. This created general alarm, and many persons left their homes, taking refuge in the hotel at Eastport. The narrow neck of land between the river bank and sea marsh bordering the bays and the gulf was completely under water, which in some places was waist deep. At 10 o'clock Monday night the wind lulled a little and then came in strong puffs. The clouds went scudding away, the heavens cleared and at midnight the moon shone on the desolate scene below. The weather had now become reasonably moderate. The bark India, for Pensacola, lost her maintopsail. During the gale the barometer on the Underwriter fell to 29.28, a remarkably low register. The damage extended all along the river.

At Cubit Gap John Wise lost his threshers, all of his rice, his cattle, in fact the storm made a clean sweep of his place. News from Point a la Hache and points below show that the first account of the damage was rather under than over-stated. There has been an almost total destruction of crops of all kinds from Point a la Hache to Point Eads on the east side of the river.

The schooner J. & J., lumber laden, was driven on the levee, 35 miles below the city, and left high and dry. Two unknown luggers shared the same fate. What few oranges there were on the trees were blown off. The damage between Point a la Hache and Port Eads in rice gardens, cattle, horses, poultry, houses, &c., is estimated at $200,000. No loss of life is reported.

A HURRICANE IN CHICAGO.

Trees Twisted Off and Hurled Great Distances—The Storm in Illinois.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—A high wind accompanied by a driving rain has been prevailing here since early this morning. The storm tore through the trees of Douglass, Garfield and Humboldt Park with the furry of a hurricane. Soft maples and saplings were twisted off close to their trunks and hurled over the tops of the large trees. Two real estate agency buildings on Madison street, near Garfield Park, were picked up by the wind and pounded to pieces on the prairie. Street car conductors and drivers, who were caught in the teeth of the gale, say that it was only with the greatest difficulty they held themselves from being thrown from their cars. All the streets in the western and southwestern portion of the city are litered with broken trees and shivered signboards. The Signal Service Officer reports that the storm is rapidly advancing in a northeasterly direction, and that it is becoming severe. Very high winds will prevail on the lakes. The storm has been attended with considerable rainfall, this station showing half an inch of water. The wind here is blowing at the rate of 20 miles an hour and has attained a velocity of from 45 to 50 miles on the lake. Reports show that the storm extends over a very wide area, but no particulars can be obtained, as the telegraph wires are down in almost every direction.

A cyclone between Ypsilanti and Elkhart, Ind., tore down all the wires in that neighbor hood, and on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway the top of a car was blown off and carried against the wires with such force as to break them all.

A VALIANT DEFENCE.

A detence in which were combined pluck, endurance, suffering and desperation was that of Captain Swift and his five companions, near the forks of the Big Cheyenne. They were all citizens, and all on their way into the Black Hills country on foot. Swift had been a Captain in a border company raised to fight Indians in Northern Nebraska, and was the only one in the lot who had ever met a hostile. Swift and two companions found the other three prospectors near the forks, and it was agreed that all should push further west in company. Every man was armed with a Winchester and two revolvers, and each carried several hundred pounds of ammunition. The men had broken camp five miles below the forks, and were on the south bank of the main stream, when they were attacked by thirty-five mounted Indians. The whites were on foot and had the shelter of timber all along the banks, and although they were harrassed for a couple of hours, no one was hurt, and the march was not greatly retarded. However, as they reached the forks the force of Indians suddenly increased to over 100, and, as they not only barred the way but had cut off retreat, Swift realized that the little band must go into camp and prepare for a siege. They drove the Indians down the south fork about half a mile until getting possession of a bluff which was well covered with timber, and here they intrenched. A natural sink was deepened with knives and hatchet, a few rocks and limbs were piled around the edges, and the men got into the rifle pit, knowing that the odds were twenty to one, and that there could not be the faintest hope of re-enforcements.

The Indians could not approach the bluff except under fire. After they had maintained a fucillade for upward of an hour without harm to the party, they sent forward a flag of truce by a half breed who could speak English tolerably well. Swift went forward to the edge of the timber to meet him, and the men in the pit were warned to be on their guard against treachery, and to shoot down any other Indian who sought to approach while a parley was being held. The half breed came forward without fear. It was evidently his object to get near enough to see what sort of a defense the men had erected, and to be certain of their number ; but Swift baffled him in this by meeting him outside the timber. The two were in rifle shot of both forces, and as the half breed rode up he demanded the immediate surrender of the party. He said that one hundred and twenty Indians were on the ground, with others coming up in the afternoon, and that it was folly for the white men to think of holding out against such a force. In case of surrender, they would be disarmed and set at liberty to make their way out of the country, but if the Indians were compelled to fight them to a surrender they could expect no mercy.

Swift replied that his party did not seek war with the red men. They were going into the Black Hills with hundreds of others to prospect for gold, and only asked to be left alone. They had been attacked without provocation, and they should fight to the bitter end. The half breed had his rifle lying across his saddle while he talked, while Swift leaned on his. The Captain suspected what would follow his refusal to surrender. The half breed once more put his demand, and as it was refused he suddenly raised his weapon and fired at Swift, and then wheeled his pony. The men were not over ten feet apart, and the bullet passed between Swift's left arm and his side, cutting through his coat. Had he raised his rifle to fire a return shot he would have been a dead man, for the action of the half breed was the signal for fifty Indian rifles to ring out. Swift dropped in his tracks and crept back to the rifle pit unharmed; but he was avenged before he reached it. One of the men had kept the half breed covered with his Winchester and as he turned to gallop away he received a bullet in the back which flung him from the saddle and left him dead on the ground. The redskins had been beaten at their own game, and they gave vent to their chagrin and anger in shouts and yells and individual demonstrations. In ten minutes they were firing all along the line, and some of them took advantage of the ground to approach within pistol shot of the rifle pit.

Swift's instructions to the men were not to waste a bullet. The Indians had to expose themselves more or less, and by watching for opportunities and keeping cool the men in the pit made some telling shots. Before sundown they had killed or wounded a dozen savages and forced the others to exercise far greater caution. Not over thirty shots were fired from the pit during the afternoon. As night approached the want of water began to be felt. No one had had a drop since morning. One of the men crept back to the bank of the river to see what the prospects were for getting down to the water, and he was instantly killed by a bullet fired from the other side of the stream. His fate was not known until darkness came on and a second man went to look for him. The bank was very steep, twelve or fourteen feet high, and it would have been extremely difficult to get down to the stream had there been no danger. The attempt to secure water was abandoned for the time. All the provisions in the party were in a raw state, and of course no fire could be lighted. Soon after dark the fire of the Indians ceased entirely. They probably reasoned that it was only a question of a few hours more when the white men would fall into their hands, and they had maintained such a hot fire through the day that their ammunition must have been running low.

The death of Wolcott cast a gloom over the party, but no one weakened. Along toward midnight, when everything had grown very quiet, Capt. Swift tried for water. A cottonwood leaned off over the bank until one on its top would be over the water. A canteen was lowered by a rope after Swift got into position, but some slight noise was made, which caused the Indians on the opposite bank to open fire, and before Swift could descend from the tree a bullet wounded him in the calf of the leg. He crept back to the rifle pit and bandaged the wound, and in fifteen minutes would have given a year of his life for a pint of water. Various methods for obtaining what all now really suffered for were suggested and rejected. There was only one way. It must be got from the tree if at all. An hour or two after Swift was shot a man named Cooper crept out on the tree and lowered the canteen. He succeeded in drawing up a few swallows of water and at once hastened to Swift. The Captain's wound had of course set him in a fever, and while he could have gulped down a quart he had only a gill. Cooper returned to the tree, and in lowering the canteen lost it. Another rope was extemporized and a coffee pot lowered, but the Indians in some manner got a hint of what was going on and again opened fire. While Cooper was not wounded, he was driven to the pit, and all further hope of securing water was abandoned. Not a man slept a wink during the night, it being generally understood that the Indians might make a rush any moment. At early dawn a shot was fired from the top of a tree in the edge of the grove which struck a man named Abbott in the head and killed him instantly. A second shot immediately followed, but hit no one. It was at once discovered that two Indian sharpshooters had climbed into the tree during the night, and from their elevation could look down into the rifle pit. They could not be seen, but two of the men opened a rapid fire on the tree, and after about twenty-five shots had been fired both redskins were tumbled to the ground. Their fall was the signal for the ball to open all along the line, and again the bullets whizzed over the pit like legions of angry bees. The Indians were pretty cautious about exposing themselves, but during the forenoon three of them were seen to drop, either hard hit or killed outright.

From noon to 5 o'clock not a shot was fired on either side, and from 5 to sundown the Indians fired only about a dozen times—sufficient to warn the white men that the siege was still on. Hunger now compelled the men to eat raw bacon and flour, and the torments of thirst were increased. Swift suffered far more than the others, being wounded, but not a complaint passed his lips. He was too stiff and sore to leave the pit, but about 10 o'clock one of the men volunteered to try for water. Some of the Indians had swam across, and were located under the bank. While they could not climb it, or at least did not, they were on hand to prevent the men from getting water.

It was Foster who went out on the tree this time, and he had not yet lowered the vessel when a bullet knocked his cap off, a second struck the stock of his rifle, and a third went through the coffee pot. He reached the pit unwounded, however, and Swift advised that no one should expose himself. They dug up the roots around them and got slight consolation from chewing them, and again the morning broke. It soon became evident that the Indians intended to finish their work. They were whooping and shouting all along the line, and seemed in good spirits.

An hour after daylight the whole line advanced on the pit, each redskin working along under the best shelter he could find. There were only four men to defend the pit, but armed as they were, and desperate as they had become, the odds were not so great. They fired cooly yet rapidly, and they not only halted the line, but at one point where three bucks were killed within ten seconds of each other a panic occurred. Thirty or more Indians rose up in a body for a rush, but the fire broke them before they had made a jump. The four men had the six rifles, and their revolvers were lying beside them for the emergency which all expected. The peril of the morning did not last twenty minutes. The baffled Indians retreated back to their old position, and about 9 o'clock withdrew so quietly that their going was not suspected for another hour. They went "en masse," leaving not even a scout behind. When the four men had secured water and something to eat they took a look over the battle ground. The carcasses of seven ponies had been left behind, and there were plenty of blood stains to prove that their Winchesters had not thrown away all their lead. A Dog Sioux, who was afterward employed as a scout at Fort Sully, told the military authorities that thirteen Indians were killed and twenty-one wounded in the fight, and that they felt themselves fairly whipped. Other Indians reported the number killed at nineteen, and the wounded at thirty, but they asserted that the number of white men was fourteen.—New York Sun.

On account of the Quarterly Conference of the Ev. church at Jacksonville, the democratic meeting which was announced to held at that place on Sat. evening, Oct. 23, was postponed to Tuesday evening, Oct. 26.

"TARIFF" is the theme of James G. Blaine's Pennsylvania campaign speeches. Apparently he is only getting in tune for 1888.

VOTE, and vote the whole democratic ticket. Get out the full vote. Democrats, see to it that you are at the polls in good time on the second of November and keep an eye on the slack vote. Canvass your districts and make it a point to bring along to the polls those who would otherwise stay at home on election day. Work, and work faithfully and the day will be ours

ASIDE from the many claims which J. Calvin Meyer has on the hearty support of the democrats there is one particular reason why he should be elected over his opponent, Mr. Lichtenthaler. Mr. Meyer speaks both languages, English and German, which will be a decided advantage in his official intercourse with the people, while the republican candidate is master of the English language only. Vote for Meyer.

BLAINE is doing wonders for the prohibition party. In his speeh at Philadelphia he called prohibition a rank heresy. Mr. Stevens, chairman of the Prohibition State Committee, says that a man who heard Blaine's speech came to the committee rooms, laid a check on the table and remarked that after hearing Blaine's sentiments on the subject of prohibition he wanted nothing to do with the Republican party.

IF the Keystone Gazette thinks that the letters which it publishes each week against Mr. Shaeffer, the democratic candidate for Prothonotary, will hurt that gentleman it labors under a wrong impression. This thing of slinging mud for the purpose of defeating a popular candidate has become threadbare and is the very last thing that will endanger a candidate's chances. Everybody knows Mr. Shaeffer and he will be elected even if the Gazette issues letters by the hundred. So we all say—vote for Shaeffer.

VOTERS take your choice. General Beaver, who was nominated for Governor four years ago, but whom the people rejected at the ballots, is again a candidate for that office and is for prohibition, for railroad monopoly and for store orders. Chauncey F. Black, who four years ago was elected Lieutenant Governor is the democratic candidate for Governor and he is against prohibition, against railroad monopoly, against store orders, but he is for the protection of the farmer and laboring man. If you would have a Governor who has the welfare of the people of this commonwealth at heart vote for Chauncey F. Black.

EVERY fair-minded American citizen will agree that President Cleveland has succeeded in putting the national administration in first-class shape and that he has indeed instituted practical reform in all departments of the government. What the people want to do now is to send men to the national congress who will support the chief executive in this noble work of reform, men who are in sympathy with the democratic administration and will give us wholesome legislation. Democrats, do not forget that James K. P. Hall, our nominee for Congress, fills the bill to perfection. Mr. Hall is a gentleman who has always made it his object to favor the working man in every possible way and who has the brains and courage to advocate measures that will benefit the people most. Your course is clear—Vote for J. K. P. Hall and you will not regret it.

THE Supreme Court rendered a decision in the South Pennsylvania Railroad case which sustains that of Judge Simonton, of the Dauphin county court, in granting, at the instance of Attorney-General Cassidy, a preliminary injunction restraining the transfer of a majority of the stock in the South Penn Company to the Northern Central Railway Company. The latter is the representative of the Pennsylvania Railroad from Harrisburg to Baltimore. The decision also forbids the transfer of the majority of the stock of the Beech Creek, Clearfield and Southwestern Company to the Bedford and Bridgeport Railroad Company. This leaves the South Penn Road in the hands of the originators of the scheme, and, although the control is nominally with the Vanderbilts, it is generally supposed to be really with the minority, which favors the completion of the road.

It is a humiliating blow at the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and a decision which entirely sides with the people.

Another Letter from Mr. Shaeffer.

BELLEFONTE, PA., OCT. 18, 1886.
To the voters of Centre Co:

Mr. C. D. Runkle, of Centre Hall, having seen fit to take issue with me concerning my published statement in reference to the twelve hundred dollars alleged to have been spent by me to secure my nomination, I desire to make a full explanation.

Knowing Mr. Runkle to be a warm friend of Mr. W. B. Mingle, and having been informed that he was dissatisfied with my nomination, I called to see him at his home on the evening of the second day of September last. After discussing at some length the canvass for the nomination and Mr. Runkle evincing an apparent disposition to treat me fairly, I asked him for his support and urged in my behalf that I stood in need of the income of the office. I stated that while living in Bellefonte my income had been small; that boarding, rents and taxes were high; that my campaign of two years ago, as well as of this year, had cost me considerable besides losing my time and wages. I told him that in order to save rent I commenced to build a house last spring and in consequence of those things I was in debt and it would require all of twelve hundred dollars to see me through, and that for those reasons and the fact that I had no position upon which to depend for a livelihood for myself and family I could not afford to be defeated.

In addition to the above statement I reiterate that I spent no money during my canvass not authorized by law.

L. A. SHAEFFER.

State of Pennsylvania, County of Centre. } s. s.

Before me, a Justice of the Peace in and for said county, personally appeared L. A. Shaeffer, who, being duly sworn according to law, did depose and say that the above and foregoing statement is correct and true to the best of his knowledge and belief.

Sworn and Subscribed before me this 18th day of October, A. D. 1886.

SAMUEL F. FOSTER, J. P.

HON LEONARD RHONE, one of the democratic candidates for assembly, is a man who did represent not only the farmers' interest but of all other classes who are equally opposed by unjust discrimination and taxation, and he will, if elected, certainly do so again. This is one of the main reasons why you should vote to return Rhone to the legislature.

During a debate in the House of Representatives, April 28th, last, on the Anti-Discrimination Bill, Hon. Leonard Rhone, among other remarks said the following, which throws a great deal of light upon this important question and proves that he for one is anxious to secure fair and just treatment for the people:

The Constitution of the State of Pennsylvania has set apart separately and distinctly the carrying companies or corporations, from all other private corporations because extraordinary privileges and rights were given to carrying companies, such as were extended to no other private corporations in our Commonwealth. No one of any intelligence will maintain for a moment that the proprietary rights of these railroads belong to the company. They have always been reserved to the State, and are now reserved. These corporate privileges are not only given to these corporations to do certain work that can be more successfully done under the management of corporations, but at the same time the State has retained to itself the right and privileges to control them. This bill under consideration does not propose to fix the railroad charges for freight or traffic; it simply prevents unjust discriminations. There is only one question to be determined by this House, and it is this: Do such unjust discriminations exist in the State of Pennsylvania? I affirm, and without the possibility of contradiction that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will give certain coal companies the privilege of the use of its cars while it will deny such use to other companies. In the town of Philipsburg certain companies have the use of the cars for $30 a year, while other companies in the same locality are denied that privilege. The result is that those companies that are not in the favor of the railroad company cannot fulfill their contracts, because the railroad company will withhold the facilities for transportation. It is too late for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company to come before this House and say that it cannot post its rates or give publicity to its rates. This principle has been affirmed by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania in the case of the turnpike companies, which must have its rates posted. The same decision has been given in regard to canal companies in this Commonwealth. This principle has also been affirmed in the State of California, in Georgia, in Illinois, in Kansas and in Missouri. Yet those states, with publicity of rates, have not suffered, nor have the railroad interests been damaged in the least. It is not a question with the legislator solely to legislate in the interest of corporations. The interests of the people of this Commonwealth are also to be taken into consideration, because ostensibly these corporate rights are granted to the railroad companies for the benefit of the citizens of the State of Pennsylvania. It is not for us to legislate for the benefit of other States. We must legislate for the benefit of our citizens and of all our citizens, and just in proportion that we do this can we expect to have prosperity. Now one farmer after another is driven to the wall. Why? Because the railroad companies bring the products from the cheap lands of the prairies right into our State at lower rates than they charge us. Is this just or right to the agricultural interest of the State? These are the wrongs that the farmers complain of, and when they come up here under right of petition it does not become the representatives in this House to ridicule those petitioners. Why do they not ridicule the railroad companies that have been lobbying here from day to day and from week to week? The farmers have not been able to come here; they have not had the means to employ the counsel necessary to defend their interest, and consequently they must come here under their constitutional right, under the right of petition. Those gentlemen who see proper to assail the rights of their constitution must remember that they are accountable to their constituents for this ridicule. Gentlemen of the House, I do not deem it necessary to continue this discussion. It is a question with each Representative whether the provisions of the Constitution have been complied with and put in force, and if a failure to comply with them is destructive to the interest of the State of Pennsylvania it is with the people to apply the necessary remedies.

Miscellaneous News.

Titus Slowly Breaking Down.

BELVIDERE, N. J., Oct. 17.—The family of Titus, the convicted murderer of Tillie Smith, at Hackettstown, have returned home. Titus is slowly breaking down. He is closely watched for fear that he will commit suicide.

—OCTOBER is a good month for merchants to examine their stock of Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine and include a winter's supply in their next order. The people have found out by experience that it can be relied on in all cases of croup, whooping cough, colds, and lung troubles of any nature, and will have it. A good article draws trade while worthless preparations drive it away. It should be a source of satisfaction to a dealer as well, to know he is giving good honest value for money received. Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

Found Guilty for the Murder of Tillie Smith.

BELVIDERE, N. J., Oct. 15.—The jury in the Titus case rendered a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, at 6 o'clock this morning. Foreman Lake burst into tears after announcing the verdict. On the first ballot the jury stood 9 to 3 against the prisoner, as guilty of murder in the first degree When the verdict was delivered, Titus seemed stunned. His lawyers ordered him to take his seat, when he bowed his head and covered his face with his hands. Titus was convicted for the killing of Tillie Smith on the night of April 8.

A Boa Constrictor Among Bananas

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 15.—John Flavel, a fruit dealer in Centre Market, received a bunch of 250 bananas from an importer this morning, the fruit having just arrived in this country. About noon, while cutting off twenty of the bananas for a customer, he saw a large green object in the bunch. He was about to take hold of it when an immense head was thrust out and a fang pointed at Flavel. For a moment there was a panic. Then Flavel took a large knife and slashed off the serpent's head. It proved to be a boa constrictor five feet in length.

"HIGH GRADE."

Messrs. Lord & Thomas, the well-known Newspaper Advertising firm of Chicago, have just issued in very neat pamphlet form, a list of 1,482 of the best country papers, our own included. This list they have very appropriately named "Our High Grade List." Advertisers who wish to cover any section at a moderate outlay should send for this list.

Messrs. Lord & Thomas are one of the leading firms in the country in their line, and have the largest office on the continent. We take pleasure in speaking a good word for them.

Using Kerosene on the Fire.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Oct. 15.—While accelerating the morning fire, Mrs. Michael Germie was horribly burned by the explosion of a kerosene can from which she was pouring the liquid. The screams of the unfortunate woman attracted the neighbors, and she was found with a burning blanket around her and her body a mass of blackened burns. She cannot recover. She was married six months ago, and her husband was absent at the time of the accident.

An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well."

Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c. per box by J. Eisenhuth.

The President Again Fishing.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The President, accompanied by Colonel Lamont, Acting Secretary Fairchild, Mr. Miller, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and several members of the Woodmont Fishing Club, left here last night for the club house at Woodmont, Md., on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. It is not known when the party will return. A dispatch from Romney, West Virginia, says: President Cleveland and party routed a deer this afternoon and it was finally shot by Mr. Bevins, Commissioner Miller's private secretary. The deer was a four-pronged buck and was presented to the President. President Cleveland caught about 10 pounds of bass and killed four squirrels and partridges and a duck.

LARGE FIRES.

The Eastport Fire—Nearly all the Business Houses Burned Out—Loss, $500,000.

EASTPORT, Me., Oct. 15.—The fire which broke out at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon raged furiously for ten hours. It started in Capen & McClellans sardine factory, and swept in a northernly direction along the water front and through Water street, burning ten sardine factories, two hotels and about thirty dwelling houses, the custom house and post-office and nearly every place of business in the city. The total loss will probably amount to $500,000, fully covered by insurance. The factories gave employment to at least 2,000 persons. Much suffering must ensue unless immediate aid is rendered. Contributions can be forwarded to Hon. H. B. Nutt, Collector of Customs.

Salisbury, Md., Visited by a Conflagration.

The Entire Business Fortion of the City Laid in Ashes—The Inhabitants Powerless to Stay the Destructive Flames.

SALISBURY, Md., Oct. 17.—A fire which started in a small frame stable about 7 o'clock to-night, swept over the entire business portion of this village. A brisk wind from the southeast spread the flames rapidly, while the inhabitants stood by powerless to prevent the destruction, as the dry frame buildings burned too fiercely to be checked by the small fire apparatus. Assistance has been asked from Crisfield and Wilmington, Del., but at a late hour to-night it looks as though the entire village would be destroyed. It is impossible to enumerate the property loss at this late hour, but a rough guess places the damage at over a million of dollars. Stores with their contents were licked up by the flames and the streets to-night are full of people whose homes have been destroyed. At midnight the fire is still burning fiercely and there seems to be no hope of staying its progress. No lives have been lost as far as can be learned.

—DRUGGISTS all report a rapid and steadily increasing demand for McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powder. There is no secret or trick about their popularity. It is solely because people have become convinced through trial or hearing their neighbors say that they are the best and easiest to take vermifuge ever produced. Nasty, sickening, old-fashioned wormseed syrups won't sell. People demand McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders, and won't have anything else, hence their sales are greater than all the other vermifuges combined. Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

—Harry A. Hall and J. L. Spangler, Esqs., circulated in town on Tuesday forenoon, to shake hands with the good democrats and reconnoitre the political territory. They gave the JOURNAL office a short call and we were real sorry they could not stay longer, as they are such a jolly pair of politicians.

Good Results in Every Case.

D. A. Bradford, wholesale paper dealer of Chattanooga, Tenn., writes that he was afflicted with a severe cold that settled on his lungs: had tried many remedies without benefit. Being induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, did so and was entirely cured by use of a few bottles. Since which time he has used it in his family for all Coughs and Colds with best results. This is the experience of thousands whose lives have been saved by this Wonderful Discovery.
Trial Bottles free at J. Eisenhuth's Drug Store.

—The Buffalo Run, Bellefonte and Bald Eagle railroad, running from the glass works at Bellefonte to above the State College, a distance of over 17 miles, is now finished and new passenger coaches are being put on the road. It is said that several capitalists are looking at the orelands along the route with a view of starting new furnaces.

—U. S. Shafer, the executor of the estate of Simon Smull, deceased, late of Madisonburg, will sell personal property of decedent, on Saturday, Oct. 30th at 1 o'clock p. m. One cow, wagons, farm implements, blacksmith tools, and several thousand feet of good building lumber will be offered for sale.

—A one year old child of Ira Ayers, of Penn street died on Tuesday night. The funeral will take place on Friday forenoon.

—The Sterling Comedy Company, with that splendid actor, W. B. Porter at its head, were playing in Mifflinburg all last week and had good audiences. Those of our townspeople who saw this company play here a few months ago will no doubt remember the pleasant evenings spent.

—A young man by the name of David Hoffman was killed on the railroad at Lock Haven, Saturday a week ago. He was intoxicated and attempted to board a moving train. He fell under the car wheels and was so badly mangled that he died of his wounds a few hours after the accident.

—In talking about the alarming amount of sickness prevailing in town and surrounding country at present one of our physicians remarked that the people should be very careful in using well water. The condition of the water in this dry weather is such that it is unhealthy to use much of it.

—J. Eisenhuth informs the public that he has added to his drug stock the celebrated KEYSTONE MALT WHISKEY and other pure liquors. Sold only on prescriptions of physicians, for medical use. 33-6m.

—On Saturday, October 30th, inst., H. A. Mingle, Esq., of Aaronsburg, executor of the estate of Mrs. Elizabeth Corman, late of Haines township, deceased, will sell the real estate of said decedent at Orphans' Court Sale. The property consists of a lot of ground with a dwelling house and outbuildings thereon erected.

—A party of six, composed of our townsmen D. A., F. P., and J. H. Musser, and Danl. Gentzel and others of Coburn, left for the Seven Mountains on Monday morning to spend a week in hunting deer. As these gentlemen have the reputation of being first-class shots we may expect to see them return with a load of venison.

FINE STOCK OF MILLINERY.—Mrs. E. J. Brumgard spent several days in Philadelphia last week, to purchase her stock of Fall and Winter Millinery goods. It may be taken for granted that she made the boss selection and ladies wanting something neat, tasty and fashionable can not go wrong in giving Mrs. Brumgard a call at her place of business, on Main street.

THREE MONTHS FREE.—The publishers of that excellent monthly, THE HOUSEKEEPER, Minneapolis, Minn., offer to send it free for three months to any lady who sends them the post-office address of twenty ladies who are keeping house. The address may be at one or several post-offices, but must be sent before November 15th, 1886. THE HOUSEKEEPER is one of the best publications in the country.

—A clear complexion. How can you expect a clear complexion when the blood is full of impurities and the stomach clogged? The blood becomes impure because the liver does not act properly and work off the poison from the system, and the certain results are blotches, pimples and eruptions. Purify the blood with Simmons Liver Regulator, and regulate the liver, stomach and bowels, and then the skin will become clear.

—W. G. Rook, the royal landlord of the National Hotel, conveyed Messrs. Hall and Spangler to Spring Mills on Tuesday afternoon and it was indeed a treat to look at his fine turn-out. That new and elegant carriage hitched to a pair of fiery bay horses, with silver plated harness and bright, tinkling martingales were handsome enough to haul the President of the United States. But then William is one of the pure democrats and they all go in for doing things right.

—Mr. J. C. Harper, of Bellefonte, spent a day in town this week. We cannot tell what his mission may have been, but we are informed that he did some electioneering against candidate Shaeffer. All we have to say about this business is that Mr. Harper will gather very little moss by fighting any part of the county ticket. He certainly got into the wrong box when he tried the game here. What wonders us most is how much "boodle" he gets for using his influence against Shaeffer.

—EMINENT Physicians connected with the principal hospitals throughout the United States report very gratifying and satisfactory results from the use of McDonald's Great Blood Purifier in all cases of vitiated blood, emaciated condition, enfeebled digestive power, malassimilation of food, &c. But few diseases can withstand its remarkable purifying tonic and reconstructive power. Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

FARMERS, TAKE WARNING.—A farmer in Letterkenny township, Franklin county, made a narrow escape from losing his barn not long since. He had prepared some home-made phosphate from lime and chicken-manure, which he had left in a heap upon the floor. Some time after it was discovered that a peculiar smell, as of substance burning, was issuing from the barn. Upon investigation it was found that the phosphate was a mass of fire. The different compositions of which it had been made generated such a great heat that spontaneous combustion was the result. With the aid of others the farmer succeeded in pitching the burning mass from the barn. The barn floor, whereon the mass lay, was considerable charred and blackened. The discovery saved the barn.—Ex.

—This is what the Clinton Democrat has to say about a lady who is well-known to many of the readers of the JOURNAL:

Among those who have visited Nittany valley and been highly pleased and benefited by the exhilarating atmosphere of our mountains, is Miss Britt, of Wheeling, W. Va., who returned to her home on Tuesday morning. Possessing a voice of wondrous power and compass, which has been termed a "Soprana Dramatigne" and among artists who appreciate the highest vocal shades, she has many friends. The newly made friends here are numerous and wish her a high place among the Prima Donnas of our land.

FINE TIMBERLAND AND A GOOD FARM FOR SALE.—On Friday, Noyember 12th, 1886, at 1 o'clock, p. m. there will be offered at Orphan's Court Sale a tract of land containing 370 ACRES, late the property of Chas. Ripka, deceased, and situate in Gregg township, Centre Co., Pa. Seventy acres thereof are cleared and fit for cultivation; 50 acres are ordinary timberland, the remaining 250 acres are the best timberland in the county. This part of the tract contains TWO MILLION FEET of the BESST WHITE PINE TIMBER in Penns Valley and THREE MILLION FEET of EXCELLENT HEMLOCK, also good oak and other wood. The tract is but four miles from the L. & T. railroad with a good road leading to Spring Mills. This timberland will be offered seperately from the farmland and affords a rare opportunity for lumber operations. There will also be sold a GOOD FARM, in the best state of cultivation and with good buildings erected thereon. Terms: One-fourth of purchase mony on confirmation of sale, balance in two equal annual payments, with interest and usual securities. 40 4t

Tribute of Respect.

WHEREAS in the wisdom and providence of God death has again crossed our threshold and removed from our Sabbath School Mr. J. Howard Harter, in whom we recognized a beloved, affectionate and considerate member, a kind and loving husband and father, and a faithful friend, be it therefore

Resolved, that we bow in humble submission to the will of that supreme and over-ruling Providence that dictates and controls the destinies of his people so as to subserve his divine purpose and promote their spiritual good;

Resolved, that we tender to the bereaved family and in a special manner to the distressed and sorrowing widow the most cordial and tender sympathies of the George's Valley Lutheran Sabbath school.

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to that bereaved family with the assurance of our fraternal sympathies, confident that "He who doeth all things well" will comfort and console them in this their sad hour of affliction, realizing that he is abundantly able and willing to supply their spiritual and temporal needs.

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the county papers for publication.

SMITH TOWN.

Ice on Sunday morning.

Next Monday the pike school will open with Mr. Foreman as teacher.

Husking corn and threshing is the order of the day.

A number of our democrats were to the meeting at Coburn on Monday evening and were well pleased with the speakers.

Michael Lamey moved his saw mill over on C. K. Sober's woodland along Penns Creek.

The storm on Saturday took the straw roof off W. F. Smith's hay stack and also scattered a lot of his hay.

J. M. Bright visited his old home at J. H. Frank's on Sunday. JUMBO.

SPRING MILLS.

D. W. Duncan, Esq., of Sunbury, is here on business relative to his father's investments in real estate in this place.

John Meyers, one of Lock Haven's best business men spent a few days in this place and was the guest of Mrs. Nofaker.

The protracted meeting in the M. E. church is still in progress.

W. A. Krise and his son Warren are visiting friends in Clearfield county. They made the trip thither in a private conveyance.

J. H. Reifsnyder, Esq., of Millheim, was here a few days with his compass doing some surveying. *

MADISONBURG.

William Bierly has gone to teach school near Wolt's store.

Henry Hazel has built a new porch n front of his house.

Geo. E. Limbert will spend his vacation, lasting only this week at home and then return to Spring Mills to prepare for College.

A. C. Ripka, Farmers' Mills, will teach school at Murray's School House, four miles west of town.

Prof. Crise, of Penn Hall, will teach at Yearick's school house, two miles west of town.

Prof. J. C. Walker, of Nittany, expects to teach the higher grade school in this place. Mr. Walker is a graduate of the Lock Haven Normal. Mr. A. Hazel, of Hickory Hill, takes charge of the primary department.

Our townsman, Lewis E. Wolf, will teach at St. Paul's, near Woodward.

Mrs. Jacob Kern expects to go to New Berlin on Friday to see her sister.

Mrs. Bitner and her son Charles, and Mr. & Mrs. Fox, all of Lock Haven, spent Saturday night and Sunday with the former lady's brother, Andrew Ocker.

Mr. Kleckner, of Sugar Valley, is doing a good bit of threshing through this valley.

W. A. McClellan and lady spent Sunday and Monday at Tussey Sink, Potter township with his parents.

Some unknown person has husked a considerable lot of corn from Mr. Grimm's shocks in his field back of town. Indeed Reuben you have my sympathy, for you could make splendid use of the corn after that cold trip up the river on the 2nd of November.

Carpenters are at work finishing Mr. Smull's wash honse.

Most of our farmers will get through husking corn this week.

STILL ANOTHER.

COBURN.

Our village has been unusually lively during the last week. On Saturday the ladies of the Luth. Mite Society gave an oyster supper and festival which was well patronized and a nice sum was realized.

On Monday evening the democrats gathered here in full force to hear the able addresses delivered by Messrs. Hall, Baker and Spangler. The meeting was to haye been held in the school house, but when the time arrived it was seen that it would not hold one-half of the people and the meeting came off in front of Vonada's store. An organization was effected by electing A. R. Alexander president and several vice presidents, after which Mr. Hall was introduced. He spoke mostly of the bad effect anti-discrimination was having on the business interests of the country. He was followed by J. T. Baker, who kept the crowd in a good humor all the way through. Mr. Spangler made the closing speech in his usual happy mood, after which three hearty cheers were given for Black, Hall and the whole ticket.

There are several parties in this vicinity who make it a business whenever there is anything going on here or at other places to raise a disturbance and try to break things up. They never give one cent toward paying any expenses or help fix anything up, but always have the largest, most open and foulest mouth and bawl the loudest. Such was the case on Saturday evening and again on Monday evening. And, we are almost ashamed to say it, they were fellows that are old and big enough to have better common sense. But it seems they lack that necessary attribute. Could they but see themselves as others see them, perhaps they would try to make men of themselves.

On Saturday last a son of Thomas Keen in running across the railroad track at our station fell and struck his head on the rail, inflicting an ugly and painful wound.

Capt. Rook and Squire Reifsnyder were here on Monday evening and took in the meeting. The Millheim band was also out in full force. There is very little if any kicking on the ticket in this township and election will bring things right and the whole ticket will go through with an increased majority.

The Lutheran congregation here was agreeably surprised this week by a check of $5.00 sent by A. S. Ruhl, of Rockford, Ill., as a contribution to the projected Lutheran church edifice in this place. He is the first donor heard from and the Lutherans feel very grateful to the gentleman for his generous gift. VALE.

AARONSBURG.

Our boys say the show at Bellefonte was N. G.

John C. Stover and wife, of near Fiedler, are visiting friends in Ohio.

Rev. Deitzler and wife are off to Snyder Co., visiting their former parishoners.

Jesse Wert and Frank Weiser took in Forepaugh at Lock Haven last week. Of course they were humbuged there all the same.

There were no bidders at H. H. Weaver's cattle sale on last Saturday. Therefore there were no sales made. Henry thinks his cattle are too precious to give away.

The Aaronsburg Luth. S. S. donated $10 to the Charleston sufferers, especially to those of the Luth. faith.

Dr. C. S Musser was the first recipient of a letter under the special delivery system adopted here quite lately.

The old Fowler place, except several hundred acres of woodland was sold last week for $1800, a Mr. Parker was the purchaser. E. Burd & W. Harter the owners made the sale.

Chas. H. Stover, our wide-awake confectioner and poultry dealer, made his first shipment of dressed poultry to the New York market on last Tuesday.

Notwithstanding it is reported that chestnuts are scarce Frank Tomlinson and Clayt. Leitzle went out on Show day and brought in 56 qts. for which they realized 10cts. per qt. Well done boys.

Mrs. Simon Rote was to Union Co. last week attending the funeral of her sister's husband Mr. Latshaw. There are seven sisters of the family and only one of the seven, Mrs. Thos. Hockman, of Millheim, who enjoys the company of a husband. ANOTHER.

REBERSBURG.

Mrs. Blair and Mrs. Erhart, of Mifflinburg, are at present visiting relatives in this vicinity.

Miss Irene Bierly left on last Friday for Dakota, where her brother Lyman is engaged in teaching.

Last week four school houses in this township were furnished with patent desks and other new furniture. This was much needed, especially in Gramley's school house, where the jackknife of the mischievous schoolboy had played sad havoc with the old desks.

Landlord Moyer raised a radish which weighs 14½ pounds. It is on exhibition at Lose's store. Who can beat Dora in the radish line?

Wm. Kreamer sold three fine horses to Smith & Co., of Lock Haven, one day last week.

Newton Brumgart is the owner of a colt, one year and five months old, which tips the scales at 1025 pounds. It is Percheron stock.

Rev. Basom, (Ev.) is at present holding a protracted meeting at Wolf's church, near Wolf's store, and has decided success.

The Miller family, the members of which are all of the feminine sex, became greatly alarmed one day last week at what they supposed to be a snake. Col. Strohecker, their nearest neighbor, was called upon for assistance, and the boardwalk was tore up for several rods. At last a small pine squirrel jumped from its hiding place and the Col. walked home mumbling something in his beard that sounded very much like latin. The boardwalk has been rebuilt and piny left for other quarters.

On Wednesday last a party of our young folks who had intended to take in Forepaugh's show at Lock Haven, were very much disappointed because the hack failed to take them. John Gramley and Geo. Guistwite however were not to be beat out and they went and had a fine time.

They say it was a pleasure to listen to the open air concert which some of Madisonburg's violinists gave at our hotel the other evening. But boys when you call around again don't forget the Rebersburg correspondent to the JOURNAL, as he is also familiar with the fidle and bow.

The other afternoon Philip Hubler, assisted by his little son aged six years gathered and hauled 290 bushels of corn. That's what Philip said and I guess well have to take his word for it.

TAKE SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

For all Diseases of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Spleen.

This purely vegetable preparation, now so celebrated as a Family Medicine, originated in the South in 1828. It acts gently on the Bowels and Kidneys and corrects the action of the Liver, and is, therefore, the best preparatory medicine, whatever the sickness may prove to be. In all common diseases it will, unassisted by any other medicine, effect a speedy cure.

The Regulator is safe to administer in any condition of the system, and under no circumstances can it do harm. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage to lead to intemperance; will promote digestion, dissipate headache, and generally tone up the system. The dose is small, not unpleasant, and its virtues undoubted.

No loss of time, no interruption or stoppage of business while taking the Regulator.

Children complaining of Colic, Headache, or Sick Stomach, a teaspoonful or more will give relief.

If taken occasionally by patients exposed to MALARIA, will expel the poison and protect them from attack.

A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.

I have been practicing medicine for twenty years, and have never been able to put up a vegetable compound that would, like Simmons Liver Regulator, promptly and effectively move the Liver to action, and at the same time aid (instead of weakening) the digestive and assimilative powers of the system. Three More Than Four.

In many southern states the negro farm-hands work on what is known as the share system. The land-owner furnishes the land, mules, and farm implements and advances the supplies. At the end of the crop season the laborer usually gets one-third of the product, corn, cotton, etc. A farmer in Sunflower county, Mississippi in re-contracting the first of the present year with his laborers for the year 1886, found several of them who were unwilling to remain with him for one-third of what they produced. 'How much more do you want?' inquired the farmer.

'We wants a forf; dat's what Mr. Mitchell's gwine to gib hes han's dis yeah.'

The farmer laughed, and, calling to his wife, asked her to bring out a couple of apple pies she had just baked, and when the pies were produced he cut one of them into three equal parts and the other into four and invited the darkies to help themselves, each to a piece. It is needless to say that the pie that had been cut in three pieces was the first one attacked.

'Now,' said the farmer, pointing to the thirds, 'that is what I proprose to give you, aad that,' pointing to the fourths, 'is what you say Mr. Mitchell is going to give you; which had you rather have?'

The darkies opened their eyes and stared at one another, when the spokesman exclaimed: 'Well! dat pie busines do prove dat a free is bigger'n a fo'. Whar dat contract Marse Bob?'

The contract was produced and the last one of them signed it.—Detroit Free Press.

Equal to the Emergency.

I was going along the roadway out on Dorchester avenue the other day, at a place where an orchard adjoins a grove, and I happened to see a policeman peering warily into the trees.

'What is it?' said I.

'Look in there behind that wall,' said he.

I did,. and there was a boy about twelve years old, barefooted, with a turf of hair sticking out through a hole in his hat, pegging stones into a pear tree and knocking down pears. The policeman worked his way in through the trees and jumped on the boy before he saw either one of us.

'Aha!' said the policeman; 'I've caught you at it!'

'Caught me at what?' said the boy.

'Stealing pears.'

'Ste—steal—stealin' pears?' said the boy, in great astonishment. 'I hain't been stealin' no pears!'

'Hain't, eh? Then what are you doing with these here in your pockets?'

The boy's trouser pockets were stuffed out on both sides with pears.

'Oh, these,' said he; 'why, I found 'em layin' 'round here on the ground, and I was firin' 'em back on the tree where they belonged!'—Boston Record.

Restaurant Matron—'I want you girls to fix up a little extra and look as pretty as you can.' Waiter girls—'is the butter bad agin?' 'No, the meat's tough.'

'That's what I call hush money,' remarked the daddy when he planked the cash for a bottle of paregoric to take home for us in the infantile portion of the family.

Herr Reinheisterbaldt at the piano—'Vell, mees, vot you tink of mine funeral march in B flat minor?' Miss Gadabout—'It's just lovely, and wouldn't it be splendid to waltz to?'

We invite special attention to our NEW PATENT AUTOMATIC TENSION MACHINE, making precisely the same stitch as the Wilcox & Gibbs, and yet, if not preferred to the Wilcox & Gibbs Automatic Tension Machine, can be returned any time within 30 days and money refunded. But what is more remarkable still, we never knew a woman willing to do her own family sewing on a shuttle machine after having tried our new Patent AUTOMATIC.

Even Shoe Manufacturers find it best suited to their work—its elastic seams are more durable. Truly—Automatic Sewing Machines are fast superseding shuttle machines, and it is no use to deny it. Truth is mighty and does prevail. Shuttle Machines have seen their best days.
